FLYING BOAT GIVEN TO STATE'S SAILORS

Speakers at Naval Militia Launching Assail Daniels's Security Policy.

WORDS PLEASE THRONG

It took three ominous swings of little Miss Olive Whitman's right arm and then seven more determined ones by Lieutenant-Commander Waite of the First Battalion Naval Militia yesterday afternoon at the foot of West Ninetysixth street to break a pretty gold and ue ribboned pint of champagne over the nacelle of the New York 1, the first hydroaeroplane to be presented to the New York Naval Militia. But the first twirl of the New York 1's propeller was followed by a roaring whr-r-r-r and the brown nosed flying boat slashed through the water and soared away above the cheers of hundreds of persons who witnessed the ceremony.

Gov. Whitman, whose five-year-old daughter was the official but unsuccessdaughter was the official but unsuccessful sponsor, made the occasion one for a plea for preparedness. Henry A. Wise Wood, vice-president of the Aero Club of America and one of Secretary Daniels's naval advisory board, who presented the hydroaeroplane to the Naval Militia on behalf of Glenn H. Curtiss and the National Aeroplane Fund, issued a call for the rejection by the American people of the programme of "unprepared-ness disguised as preparedness, both as to the army and navy, that the Adminis-tration has offered through the public

"On behalf of that patriotic movement "On behalf of that patriotic movement for national defence," said Mr. Wood, "which until recently found Washington but cold and dumb, I demand, first, that we be restored at once to the position of second naval Power, from which through the weakness of our advisers we were permitted to fall, and second, that the recommendations of the General Staff of the army be revealed and if adequate be enacted into law."

Granite State and crowded the dock where the launching of the hydroaero-plane took place. New York is the first State to have such a machine in the service of its naval militia. The entire battalion was drawn up to receive the battainon was drawn up to receive the Governor, his military aids, officials of the Aero Club and other notables. Commander Charles L. Poor accepted the boat for the naval militia. Both the National Guard and naval militia of Lorillard Spencer, Major Reginald Foster, Alan R. Hawley, president of the Aero Club; Henry Woodhouse, Samuel H. Valentine, Emerson McMillin, Albertos Santos-Dumont, Elmer and Lawrence Sperry, Truman W. Post and W. Redmond Cross. A brief reception was held in the cabin of the Grante State when Gov. The launching was arranged on the dock aft of the Granite State. The New York I. is a trim, haposing craft of power that was not realized until Ensign Lee H. Harris, recently a student at the Curtiss school, and Frank H. Burnside took her aloft and flew up and down the giver for ten minutes. She is of the type used by the United States navy containing a 100 horse-power motor. Two pennants flew from the machine yesterday, the First Battalion's ensign at the prow and the United States pennant above the finlike stern. The militia, he said, is the great second line of national defence and its men, sacrificing their spare time to a patriotic duty, are always ready for the vital moment. They are the men, he insisted, upon whom the nation would ultimately depend in case of emergency.
